

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A remote controller includes a plurality of keys, which are operated to transmit infrared signals different for each key. A receiving device executes different kinds of operations based on the kind of signal received from the remote controller. The receiving device can change the correspondence between the kind of signal received from the remote controller and the kind of operation to be executed.